

An introduction to Oranga Marae

Ka ora ā-muri, ka ora ā-mua
Sustaining the marae, sustaining the pae

Hāpaitia te ara tika pumau ai te rangatiratanga mō ngā uri whakatipu.

Foster the pathway of knowledge to strength, independence and growth for future generations.

Oranga Marae provides advice and practical support to develop marae, whānau, hapū and iwi.

Established in 2018, Oranga Marae is a co-investment initiative of Te Puni Kōkiri and the Department of Internal Affairs. Whānau, hapū and iwi can access funds through one system, with support from advisors where needed.

Taking a holistic look at marae wellbeing

The wellbeing of marae has as much to do with the whare as it does with the whānau. This initiative invests in both the physical and cultural development of marae.

Physical development

Oranga Marae will invest in the physical development of marae such as repairing whare or other capital works.

Cultural development

Oranga Marae will support descendants to learn about tikanga and kawa or upskill in traditional practices, such as whaikōrero or karanga.

What you need to know.

Who can apply to Oranga Marae?

- Traditional or urban marae
- Gazetted on Māori reservation land or general land

What can you apply for?

- Grants to support marae development planning
- Grants to obtain technical or feasibility reports
- Funds to implement both cultural and capital works on the marae

Marae development plans

Before making an application for funding, it is important that there is a development plan for your marae. This is a plan for the future of your marae.

Many marae may already have a plan. If however, you need assistance to put one together, there is support available through Oranga Marae.

More Questions

We are at this stage	How we can help
We want to protect/develop our marae but we don't have a board	Get in touch. We may be able to connect you with support to get governance in place. Then later you could come back to us for investment.
We have a plan for our marae, we just can't afford to make any changes	Contact us. You may want some funding to help obtain technical or feasibility studies, or you might be ready to apply for investment to begin making changes to the marae.
Our whānau are mostly away, how do we get their support for a plan for our marae?	Talk to us. It is possible you could get some funding to help draft up a plan and use technology to consult with dispersed whānau.
We have been fundraising to apply to the Lottery Marae Heritage and Facilities Fund. What do we do now?	That Fund has closed but we will do all we can to help you now. Our focus is on a good, whānau-supported plan being in place. If you have that you can proceed quickly and the funds you have raised could support the project or go towards ongoing marae maintenance costs.
